For Starting a Blog It's 2018. The millennial generation has made it possible to start a profitable, profitable blog that only needs monthly income from the ads on the side. Many of us have done this, and it is totally possible. BUT, starting a blog is easier said than done. How you start is more important than how you end. I say this because many bloggers get stuck in the beginning, and don't see their posts or grow their audience, it happens all the time. Whether or not you're successful in 2017, you will be successful if you work at it. Your content should be your EASIEST way to make money. I think it's important to figure out what you're good at, what you love doing, and what you'd like to make money at. To me, it sounds like you've already done this. What you love doing is your PASSION. You can't fake this. You can try to learn how to do a lot of things, but you'll never actually be good at them. If you aren't a writer, make it about writing. If you aren't a business person, make it about being a business person. I hate how people use the word "IF" in their titles, they're not IFs, they're WHAT IFs. If you aren't good at and passionate about what you're doing, you're going to struggle. Don't let the idea of doing this scare you, because it shouldn't. When you're a kid, you're constantly told to follow your passion, and feel like you can't. Everyone started somewhere. What you're doing is possibly the best start you'll ever see for one of your blog posts. You'll make a little money, with a mentor and a bet. BONUS: You can sell on Amazon for up to $1,500/customer What you're doing is technically selling. Unlike most freelance work, you're not doing it to make a profit, you're doing it to make a profit. In this case, it's a $0 to $1,500/customer. I don't

As one of the few time-limited game types for PC, ASTRONEER is a sci-fi platformer hybrid where the player explores the outer reaches of space while investigating the role of the time-traveling astrolabe. Traveling through eight large, procedurally-generated environments, the player must solve environmental puzzles, combat enemy forces, and traverse their way through a solar system that collides with another solar system. Players can choose the personality of their astronaut and develop the spaceship they will use to travel across the cosmos. In order to proceed through the exploration of their solar system, they will need to access the human history that changed the world in which they live. PS4 players will be able to enjoy the game with a controller using either DualShock 4 or a Bluetooth controller. History and Development Early on in development, the concept of ASTRONEER was inspired by a job interview with Superbrothers games where the developers said that they were looking for a "timely story" and the "culture of the future". Shortly after that, the creators started brainstorming and prototyping in the beginning of 2013. In January 2014, the first fully-fledged prototype was showcased at Casual Connect 4, which got good feedback. After the prototype's presentation, the team decided to set the project on a time limit of one year. Progress was steady for the remainder of 2014 as the team tweaked the code and characters. At the end of 2014, the team was happy with the engine's progression and decided to start development on ASTRONEER in earnest. In March 2015, the first playable version of the game was shown at GDC 2015 in San Francisco. At the time, the game was mostly complete, but only with certain aspects of the story. In September 2015, the team released an early alpha version that enabled players to complete a handful of missions and beat the game. During that same year, the team finished polishing the game until the first beta in 2016. It was in October 2016 that the game was released to the public as a digital download on Steam, PlayStation Network, and the Xbox Store. Characters Astroneer features a wide variety of playable characters. Each one has their own abilities, stats, equipment, backstory, and fate. There are 8 playable characters in the game: Carol This character is a pacifist traveller who is distrusting of mankind and wants to reach some place called "Starfall".
