A total of 1039 people with schistosomiasis were evaluated. Their ages ranged from 4 to 65 years with a mean of 31.8 +/- 0.76 years. The ages of the groups of patients were correlated with histopathological changes in the liver. From the 1039 people whose liver biopsies were done, 349 showed an abnormal histopathological pattern. The most common and consistent finding was granulomatous liver disease (343) followed by chronic viral hepatitis (28) and hepatic amoebiasis (14). The presence of Schistosoma mansoni ova in the liver correlated well with the presence of granulomatous changes, as observed in 80 per cent of the cases. The reasons for the absence of schistosomiasis ova in certain communities and the involvement of other parasites, such as Fasciola and Fasciola hepatica, were discussed. It was also noted that it is no longer possible to make a definite diagnosis of Schistosoma mansoni infection without finding the ova.
