I get the following information when type EXEC sp_help @object_name = 'table': What I expected to get when type EXEC sp_help @object_name = 'table' was this: Is there any way to make the sp_help query work the same way as @object_name = 'table'? A: Excerpt from the sp_help documentation: Note When a parameter is named both Object_name and Schema_Name, the query results might not be as expected. In this situation, the returned information will only correspond to the schema. Thus, for example, if the Object_name parameter is "table" (case-sensitive), the actual query used by the sp_Help procedure is SELECT d.Name, CASE WHEN s.Name LIKE '%._oid' THEN s.Name ELSE s.Name + '_g' END AS IndexName, CASE WHEN i.name LIKE '%._oid' THEN i.name ELSE i.name + '_g' END AS IndexName, o.name AS Index, d.type_desc AS Type, i.is_primary_key AS isPK, i.is_unique 6d1f23a050
